GERMANS RENEW ASSAULT ON BEACHHEAD

Meandering Along the Main Stem By WASH FAYETTE

Every once in a while I run across a minor mystery. I found one today in my own billfold. I take spurts of cleaning out papers and cards stuffed inside it and when I took a heap of old receipts bills (unpaid, not dollars) and other miscellany out today I found an address.

The address is 315 East Melford. That's all there was to it. Melford Avenue, Street, Drive, Boulevard? I don't know. I don't know what city or state either. . . nor who or what lives there.

Not that it is terribly important, likely if a fortune in jewels or a postage stamp collection awaited me at 315 Melford, I'd remember it without any trouble at all.

It's just the nagging, uncomfortable feeling I have—knowing my memory serves me so poorly. I can't even recognize the handwriting. . . I know it isn't mine, because even I can't make out the illegible scrawls I make a day after I make them. It's a distinctly feminine handwriting, though.

Say, do you know anybody living at 315 Melford anywhere? . . .
Maybe it is all in getting acclimated. . . but just the same George Schmidt is getting some very peculiar ideas. . . out especially about the weather.
George's annual letter just came in from Wadena, Minn., where he went from here to manage a Cudahy Packing Co. plant. . . the primary purpose was to renew his subscription to the Record-Herald for another year. . . but as usual he enclosed a little personal note, some of the highlights of which were:

"Things going along here as usual, except we have had a mild winter. . . coldest day was 25 degrees below zero.
"Haven't had much snow yet. . . only about six inches.
"The McCoy murder case has been widely publicized here.
"Sorry to read (in the Record-Herald) about so many fires back there."

He didn't say whether he went fishing with the temperature at 25 below. . . but he enclosed a picture of himself holding a great big fish. . . he didn't say what kind it was. . . but its tail touched the ground with its head at about his belt buckle. . . he said he would like for Frank Thornton and some of the other fishermen who stop in at the Club to see it. . . so I'm going to drop the picture in the mail for Frank right now. . . you fishermen friends of George can see it there. . . just ask Frank for a look. . . incidentally, he caught it at Ottertail Lake, near Wadena.

Remember George? . . . he was manager of the Cudahy plant here for several years. . . he was a Fayette County native and always did call this "home." . . now he's up there in Minnesota where they have real winters.

BUSINESS FREEDOM IS MORE IMPORTANT CONTRACTOR SAYS

COLUMBUS, Feb. 17.—(P)—The outcome of war is less important than the government's attitude toward the individual, James F. Lincoln, president of the Lincoln Electric Co. of Cleveland, declared last night before the Fiftieth Annual Convention of the Ohio Hardware Association.

The prominent industrialist and outspoken critic of some Federal government policies said "the problem before us, I say to you in all seriousness, is of greater importance than the outcome of the war. The problem is what the attitude of the government toward the individual is to be."

Daring Yank Fliers Defy Jap Guns In Rescue

(Editor's Note: "Gen. Douglas MacArthur gave official recognition today in his Southwest Pacific communique to the daring feat of a Navy Catalina plane which landed under the very muzzles of Japanese shore batteries at Kavieng, New Ireland, to pick up downed American fliers. Here is the gripping story of that exploit.)

By OLIN CLEMENTS

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Feb. 17.—(P)—The Navy Catalina, "Arkansas Traveler," weathered stiff fire from shore batteries of the Japanese at Kavieng, New Ireland, Tuesday—also 15-foot swells on the water that burst some of her rivets—to make the most spectacular rescue of downed American airmen of the Southwest Pacific war.

Members of that crew, led by Lt. (jg) Nathan G. Gordon, 27, of Morrilton, Ark., former end on the University of Arkansas football team, told today of rescuing 15 fliers. That entailed making four landings in the face of shore gunfire.

The rescues came during the height of a massive air strike by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Mitchells on Kavieng Tuesday morning. Bombs still were falling on the flaming townsite as the Catalina made the hazardous landings.

"We were circling a small island not far from Kavieng, when a Mitchell came up and radioed that it had spotted a crew on the water," Lieutenant Gordon related.

Six men were sighted on a life raft two miles off shore. Gordon and his crew circled for the dangerous landing in 15-foot swells.

When the "Arkansas Traveler," a pig painted on her sides, hit the surface some of her rivets broke and she began to take water. The plane taxied to the raft which contained several injured men. Life preservers on lines were tossed to them.

"We had to hurt a few of the injured to get them aboard," Gordon said apologetically.

After 20 minutes under fire of shore batteries, the Catalina took off.

Then a Mitchell piloted by Major Chester A. Coltharp, also of Arkansas, radioed that another crew was spotted on the water.

Closer in to shore, three men were seen floating in the water. Ten minutes later, they had been taken aboard. One walked into the navigator's compartment and shook hands with one of the first rescued fliers.

"Imagine meeting you here," he said. They had been classmates at a flying school and this was their first meeting since graduation.

The big Catalina got off again.

"I was happy as hell it was all over," Gordon sighed.

"I at first had been nervous; then I was so busy I forgot that; but when we got the second batch aboard I began to have nervous indigestion."

But a third message said more men had been spotted. This time fliers were so near Kavieng the Catalina had to overshoot the landing by 200 yards to keep from hitting land.

"I thought it a damn foolish stunt," Gordon said, "for I thought we wouldn't get out with the nine we had rescued and it was a terrible chance to take to rescue one man—for we had seen only one head bobbing near the partly capsized raft that had been strafed from shore. When we taxied up, they were really

FIERCE BATTLE RAGES -- ALLIES STANDING FIRM

Russians Advance Slowly
In North -- Dnieper Bend
Death Trap Tightened

By RICHARD MCMURRAY

(By The Associated Press)

The German threw his full force of infantry, tanks and cannon against the northern end of the small Rome beachhead today in a second all-out effort to drive the Allies into the sea, but American and British lines were declared holding firm.

A violent tank battle swirled on the beachhead. The Germans struck Wednesday morning near Carroceta (Aprilia) behind heavy artillery preparation and with increased air support. Allied lines grimly met the shocks which continued through the night and day.

Fifty miles to the east, American troops still were fighting in the debris of Cassino's streets. Elsewhere from the Tyrrhenian to the Adriatic seas, patrols were active. Two Polish divisions went into action against the Nazis.

The beachhead fighting far eclipsed that in strategic Cassino where, however, American forces still were bitterly contesting the Nazi strangle hold. RAF and Australian Kittyhawks again bombed the ruins of the Monte Cassino Monastery. American planes hit German positions elsewhere on Abbey Hill.

Wave After Wave
After the long and concentrated German artillery barrage yesterday morning, the first enemy shock troops struck in the first phases of the new beachhead attack with tanks in support. The Allied armor immediately went into action against them.

The Germans kept coming in wave after wave throughout yesterday and last night. The enemy attack came in the Carroceta (Aprilia) area, 10 miles due north of the port of Anzio. Various vantage points in that area have changed hands several times. Carroceta itself was in German hands at latest report.

The Germans opened the new offensive after apparently recovering from losses suffered in the first major effort to drive Allied troops into the sea, but during the lull the Allies also had built up new strength.

Monastery Bombed Again
On the lower Fifth Army front Allied artillery laid many shells during the day among German traffic on Highway 6 leading out of Cassino and two miles westward Allied troops engaged the enemy in a sharp clash.

While the Monte Cassino Monastery has been reduced to ruins the Germans are holding out in a network of strong pillboxes around it and this has apparently prevented ground troops from occupying the crest of Abbey Hill.

In Cassino itself the fighting was less intense than on previous days.

On the Eighth Army front patrols were active, including those sent out by newly arrived Polish troops.

The air attack on Rome, directed against the Tiburtina and Ostiense railroad yards, cascaded high explosives into great clusters of freight cars, the majority of which were loaded with German supplies for the beachhead.

Rome Rail Yard Hit
Dive bombers tangled the rail yards of Rome for the second successive day yesterday in which the Allies flew 1,200 sorties. The enemy put 130 planes aloft and nine were shot down. Four Allied craft were lost.

Ruins of the Cassino Monastery, which the Germans now admit is part of their line, were bombed again.

German communications throughout northern and central Italy were bombed.

The second all-out offensive against the beachhead was mounted two days after Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander in Italy, had declared his troops were winning the second round of the battle and that the

BRAKES APPLIED TO LEND-LEASE

Uncle Sam Not Going To Back
Civilian Production

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(P)—

Virtual elimination of capital goods shipments to Britain under lend-lease is understood to have been agreed upon by British and American supply officials here. The decision is one of numerous adjustments being made to keep lend-lease exports closely geared to military needs.

For several months the quantity of machinery going to Britain had decreased steadily, largely because British plants now have about all they need except for occasional replacements.

The approaching climax of the war in Europe has brought a tightening up of the policy of limiting lend-lease supplies to those needed primarily for war purposes. Lend-lease officials apparently are determined not to leave themselves open to congressional criticism that they have supplied other countries equipment of more use in the post-war period than now.

This is understood to be in keeping with a view President Roosevelt has expressed that there must be a clean break between expenditures under lend-lease and those designed to help other nations reconstruct their industries after the war. Beginning on the day of victory or as soon afterward as possible lend-lease shipments will stop and capital goods exports will be made on either a cash or credit basis.

200,000 AMERICANS RETURNED FROM WAR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(P)—More than 200,000 troops, exclusive of sick and wounded, have been sent back to the United States from overseas duty since the start of the war, Secretary of War Stimson reported today.

Some of these were brought home under the rotation policy for exchange of men overseas for replacements from the United States, while others came home as "returned" personnel for whom no specific replacements were required.

American Aerial Attack Against Japs Broadened As Caroline Islands Hit

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

(By The Associated Press)

Far-flying American bombers, blazing a trail into the heart of Japan's island outposts, have broadened operations against enemy bases atwart the strongly-guarded approaches to the Philippines and the Japanese mainland.

In one raid aimed at Kavieng, New Ireland, Allied fliers continued the systematic reduction of Japanese positions in the Bismarck archipelago, southwestern sentry for war-won Nipponese territory in the Pacific.

But the first aerial assault on Ponape announced yesterday marked a significant extension of American bombing missions into mandated Caroline Islands between the Marshalls and the Philippines.

Big Liberators probably flew a 2,000-mile roundtrip from the Gilberts last Monday to smash at the largest of the Carolines, only 410 miles east of the Japanese stronghold at Truk.

The Japanese sent up no fighter planes to oppose pounding of their important administrative center, and the Navy communi-

Draft-Deferred Farm Workers To Be Called Unless Essential

Draft Boards Ordered To Review Approximately 1,700,000
Cases and Reclassify Those Not Contributing Full
Share of Production in Light of 1944 Crop Goals;
System for Evaluating Workers Revised

By MAX HALL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(P)—Draft boards today were ordered to review immediately the cases of 1,700,000 deferred farm workers and cancel the deferments of those not contributing their share of production in the light of increased crop goals for 1944.

Selective Service announced boards are not expected to continue to defer a farm worker unless he produces "by his own personal and direct efforts" at least 16 "war units" a year. Heretofore registrants have been considered for deferment if they produced eight or more "war units"—formulated by the Agriculture Department as a measure of agricultural activity.

There was no estimate how many farmers the new policy would throw into the armed forces. But Selective Service left no doubt it was taking drastic action.

Local boards will first go through the list of registrants in Class 2-C, in sequence of order numbers. There are more than 1,000,000 non-fathers deferred in agriculture, most of them in 2-C, the classification for men deferred solely because of farm work.

Those in this class who continue to qualify for deferment under the new regulations will be reclassified in 2-C for six months or less, and then their cases will be reopened again.

When a local board has reviewed its 2-C men, it will start on Class 3-C—men deferred not only for agriculture but also because of dependents. This class, in the sequence of order numbers, will be liquidated altogether, in the same manner as Class 3-A, because dependency is no longer a ground for deferment.

Those in 3-C who can still qualify for farm deferment will be put in 2-C.

Under the Tydings amendment to the Selective Service Act, men found by local boards to be "necessarily and regularly engaged in" essential agricultural occupations must be deferred as long as no replacements can be obtained.

But today's announcement said increased crop goals and the overall manpower shortage now necessitate cancellation of deferments of men "not contributing through their own personal efforts their share of labor and production to agriculture's intense war effort."

PRISONER EXCHANGE CRITICIZED BY REDS

German Captured in Russia
After Release by Britain

MOSCOW, Feb. 17.—(P)—An implied criticism of Britain's exchange of war prisoners with Germany was contained in a story published today in Pravda, Communist party organ. The Russians never have exchanged prisoners with the Germans.

The story was an account by a German senior corporal, Gerhardt Machens, who said he sailed from Oran in North Africa last October in a Red Cross exchange and then went to the Russian front after a vacation of only four weeks.

British and German prisoner exchanges are supposed to have included only those ill and too seriously wounded to take part in combat again and non-combat categories such as medical corpsmen.

Fate Of Food Subsidies Is Sealed By Congress

By FRANCIS M. LE MAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(P)—Congress will toss the anti-subsidy bill to the White House today, and then wait for it to bounce back.

Administration leaders said President Roosevelt is certain to veto this legislation which strikes at what he considers the heart of his wartime economic stabilization program. And they voiced confidence the veto will be sustained.

On the other hand, Senator Bankhead (D., Ala.) and Rep. Wolcott (R., Mich.), anti-subsidy leaders, said they believed they had a good chance of overriding a veto.

Chester Bowles, price administrator, contends elimination of consumer food subsidies would break the line against inflation, resulting in an immediate 7 percent rise in food costs. Subsidies have been used to reduce prices of butter by five cents a pound, depress meat prices as much as three or four cents a pound and to hold down other retail food prices.

Plenty of Money
Subsidy opponents contend the public has plenty of cash to pay higher prices for food, and some farm groups argue such increases would compensate the farmer for larger production costs and en-

ANZIO CENSORSHIP IS OPPOSED BY OWI

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(P)—Director Elmer Davis of the Office of War Information said today he was making representations to the Army today against the stoppage of direct filing of press dispatches from the Anzio beachhead in Italy.

Davis indicated plainly he felt the action went beyond the acknowledged necessity of preserving military security.

"I will take the matter up with the Army today," Davis told reporters. "We (OWI officials) fully realize the requirements of security in such a military situation and certainly don't want security violated in any respect."

"However, I think the public is entitled to the fullest and most rapid supply of news consistent with military security."

British dispatches said stories would be delayed at least one day—sometimes two—by the restrictions, which were denounced as "stupid" and "intolerable" by London newspapers last night. Denied the use of on-the-spot radio facilities, correspondents will have to courier front-line dispatches to base headquarters for censorship.

'Peace Now' Movement Is Called Seditious

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(P)—The Dies committee turned over to the Justice Department today evidence it said showed that the "Peace Now" movement was engaged in "acts whose nature is clearly seditious and which tend toward the encouragement of treason."

Chairman Dies (D., Tex.) said he would recommend prosecution under the sedition laws. Dies, head of the special House committee investigating un-American activities, told reporters he believed his group's formal report on "Peace Now," made public last night, "spells the end of that organization," but added the committee "will continue to keep a watchful eye on those connected

$28,500 DRIVE FOR RED CROSS OPENS MARCH 1

John Leland Heads Campaign Committee, To Meet Next Monday Night

Fayette County faces the largest Red Cross War Fund drive in its history when the $28,500 campaign begins March 1.

Because most of the work of the Red Cross today is either directly or indirectly concerned with men in service, more funds are needed now than ever before with more men in uniform than at any other time in history.

First meeting of the committee will be next Monday at 8 P.M. in the Farm Bureau office, Campaign Chairman John Leland said today. Groundwork plans for the campaign will be made then.

The actual campaign committee, headed by Leland, will be supplemented by Judge H. M. Rankin, chairman of the Fayette County chapter of the American Red Cross; Miss Mary D. Robinson, home service secretary and Leonard Korn, treasurer, who will also be publicity chairman.

The special gifts committee is Glenn Woodmansee, Carroll Halliday, Walter Patton, Rell Allen, Damon Baker and L. C. Coffman, as announced by Leland. Industry committees are Edwin Sunthamer and Emmet Passmore.

Harold Craig, Ora Middleton and Robert Meriwether will canvass the business section. M. L. Clark is chairman of the residential solicitation committee with George Campbell, first ward; A. E. Weatherly, second ward; George Pensly, third ward and Richard R. Willis and William Humphries, fourth ward, as his co-workers. Ralph Winsley will head the township committees.

Special groups will be in charge of W. J. Hilly and special populations supervised by Alonzo Bass.

with the movement." One of the main items Dies said he would hand over to Attorney General Biddle was a letter committee investigators obtained from the organization's files and which, the committee said, was sent to 57 prominent religious leaders last October.

The letter, the report said, invited religious leaders to "publicly request all the followers of Christ under your banner at once to lay down their arms and cease supporting this war."

In its judgment, the committee said, "the mailing of each and every one of these letters from the office of the Peace Now movement was a seditious act deliberately designed to lead toward wholesale treason on the part of the armed forces of the United States" and involved "a plan for mass treason which was truly colossal in its conception."

A follow-up letter, the committee reported, expressed belief it would be preferable for Christians to be "guilty of treason to this administration than guilty of treason to Christ."

The committee said Peace Now was organized last year to work for a negotiated peace. Its officers were identified as George W. Hartman, chairman; Dorothy Hutchison, associate editor; Marjorie Ewbank, treasurer and Bessie Simon, secretary.

Dies said he would ask the Justice Department to determine whether deportation or detention proceedings should be started against John Albert Collett, a native of Oslo, Norway, whom the committee identified as field secretary for Peace Now.

Russians driving on Pskov on a 75-mile front struck within 30 miles of that rail center, meeting increasing resistance around Lake Peipus. They captured Samolva on the narrow of the lake and Berlin said the Russians had crossed the ice into Estonia.

Four hundred Russian bombers pounded the Finnish capital of Helsinki for nine hours last night, perhaps to prod the Finns into surrender. Aabon on the southeast Finnish coast had three alarms. Juhani Paasikivi, who negotiated the 1940 peace, remained in Stockholm despite Vichy radio reports that he had gone to Moscow.

RATION TOKEN DISTRIBUTION TO START SOON

One Point Green Stamps To Be Used as Change When Token Use Begins

Beginning Thursday, grocers and meat dealers in the county will get red and blue ration tokens at banks in exchange for ration currency. The tokens will come into general use February 27, under present OPA plans.

The ration board here today was awaiting instructions from the OPA that one point green stamps as well as the new blue ration tokens will be given as change in processed food sales during the first three weeks the token plan is in operation.

It was explained this arrangement was a precaution against the possibility tokens may not be well distributed immediately in some sections.

One point brown stamps for meat are currently being used in this manner and the policy will be continued during the change-over to the token plan, it was said.

Two sets of stamps will be used for processed foods and two for meats and fats during the three-week transition period.

The last of the green stamps—K, L and M—and the brown—Y and Z—will become valid through March 20 and will be worth 8, 5, 2 and 1 points, as at present.

Ration book four blue stamps A8, B8, C8, D8, E8—all with a 10-point value—will be valid for processed foods from Feb. 27 through May 20.

Blue tokens—through March 20, one point green stamps—will be given as change for both sets of processed food stamps.

Red 10-point stamps A8, B8, and C8 in book four will be good from Feb. 27 through May 20, while stamps D8, E8 and F8 will be good March 12 through May 20.

Change for the two sets of meat stamps will be given in red tokens and—through March 20—in one-point brown stamps.

tact. Moscow said nothing of these operations.

Death Trap Tightened
The death trap of the encircled German Eighth Army near Cherkassy was further contracted and 2,500 of the "tired Nazi infantry, fighting with the fury of despair," were killed, the Russian communique said. Repeated German attempts to relieve the survivors of the ten crack divisions were beaten back.

President Pedro Ramirez of Argentina named three new cabinet members in an attempt to compromise demands of opposing factions in the dissident Argentine army. The crisis eased for a moment. The trouble apparently stemmed from a move to declare war on Germany and Japan after those nations insulted Argentina over the reported arrest of their military attaches.

Hull Confident
Secretary of War Stimson spoke confidently of the Allied position at Anzio today as dispatches from headquarters in Italy reported a fresh and fierce Nazi attempt to break up our beachhead south of Rome.

That beachhead, Stimson told his press conference, has been firmly established, with American and British forces holding superiority of striking power in tanks, artillery and aircraft and prepared to use present positions as a springboard for further advances.

Asserting there had been "unwarranted pessimism" in some news dispatches and discussions of the Anzio operation, Stimson said:

"The situation in Italy now is an illustration to point up the old saying, 'Keep your shirt on.'"

He was asked if he approved a theater order, based on assertions that front line dispatches were over-pessimistic, forbidding direct radio transmission of news stories from the beachhead and requiring instead that they be sent by courier to Naples for censoring.

"My only comment on that," the secretary replied, "is in accord with my usual policy: General Wilson, commanding in the Mediterranean theater, is in the best possible position to judge whether factors such as you refer to affect the operations in this theater either favorably or adversely."

Discussing the Italian front generally, Stimson said the Germans had thrown in perhaps as many as 17 divisions there.

pected to be routed to the White House today when the House approves the final form of the legislation drawn yesterday by a Senate-House Conference committee. The Senate approved the conference action yesterday.

Program Ends June 30

The bill permits the administration's consumer subsidy program to continue only until June 30, and directs federal agencies to adjust milk prices upward to offset production cost increases since January 1, 1941, meaning that milk prices probably will rise 1 to 2 cents a quart to consumers.

CCC officials said inasmuch as both subsidy proponents and opponents favored its continuance, they would proceed with present non-controversial programs pending final outcome of the subsidy battle.

The only program placed in an uncertain status is that of a $300,000,000-a-year milk and butterfat subsidy program.

Most officials expressed opinion dairymen would get subsidies for the period between tonight and the time new legislation is finally approved extending the CCC's authority. They said administrative orders undoubtedly would be issued directing payments retroactive for that period. This opinion was based upon assumption a presidential veto of the anti-subsidy legislation would be sustained by Congress.

over Kavieng Tuesday. Eight of the raiders were shot down, but 15 crew members were rescued through the heroic efforts of Lt. (JG) Nathan G. Gordon, Morrilton, Ark., who landed his flying boat in the teeth of enemy shore fire to pick up the men.

General MacArthur's communique reported that the town of Kavieng was left a "mass of flames and smoke" by the 65-ton bombing which also destroyed a 3,000-ton enemy cargo ship, three coastal vessels and several smaller craft.

Other Allied bombers pounded enemy positions at Jacquinot Bay, on the southeast coast, and Talasea and Cape Hoskins, on the north central sector, of New Britain, American ground forces cleared the Borgen Bay-Cape Mensing area on the invaded western tip of the island.

U. S. and New Zealand troops have consolidated their positions on the Green Islands, 120 miles east of Rabaul, MacArthur announced. The little coral bases were occupied Monday and Tuesday to cut off supply traffic for an estimated 22,000 Japanese in the northern Solomons.

On the biggest land front of the Pacific war, Indians troops fought off Japanese attempts to encircle Allied forces in the Mayu mountains of southwest Burma. The Indians held to their position commanding the Ngakyadauk Pass, main communications link between the Allied army and its bases in India.

The New Delhi communique said Japanese attempting to cross the west bank of the Chindwin River to the north were driven back, American-trained Chinese forces continued their push across northern Burma.

Have a Coca-Cola=Here's to old times

...or welcoming home a sailor son

These days there can be more real welcome in a snack shared in the kitchen than in many an old-time banquet. And with ice-cold Coca-Cola to add refreshment, you have all the makings at hand for a good time. As our men in camp and overseas so often tell, in all the world there's no more cordial invitation than those three familiar American words, Have a "Coke". At your icebox, the same as in P. X.'s around the globe, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes,—has become the global symbol of American hospitality.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Observers in London, taking a rosy view of the amazing way the Red armies are ravaging the Hitlerian war front, are speculating on the possibility of the Russians completely clearing their territory of the invaders during the five remaining weeks of winter.

Well, that certainly is super-optimism, but it must be admitted that it's within the range of extreme possibility—if the "if" would be a collapse of the Nazi front, either resulting in debacle or quick withdrawal to, say, the Brest Litovsk-Carpathians line through Poland, which might be Hitler's last stand before falling back to the German frontier.

The whole Nazi front in the Ukraine is shivering like an autumn leaf, and the northern flank, in the Leningrad zone, is in jeopardy. Should Finland suddenly make peace terms with Russia, thereby uncovering the German wing on the Baltic, almost anything could happen. Red armies again bombed Helsinki, the capital, last night—just as a reminder that there's no time like the present.

However, the purpose of this article isn't to dilate on this highly speculative contingency of wholesale German retreat, but to consider what happens when the Hitlerites do make their big withdrawal, as they surely must. Daily one hears the query:

Will the Russians keep on driving right into Germany, no matter whether the Anglo-American invasion has reached Hitler's western border? Supposing (and this is asked in sepulchral voice) the Red army is first in the Reich? It would be interesting to know whence comes the odd notion that the Russians are bound to withhold the coupe de grace from Hitler until the western Allies are on the ground, or that the latter will hold their hands if they happen to be first in the field. The idea is absurd.

Of course the Red forces will continue the chase until the Nazis yell for mercy. Indeed, the Hitlerites will be lucky if they're able in some cases to holler loud enough to make themselves heard.

Human nature—being what it is, it's likely that neither the Muscovites nor the Anglo-American pair would be happy to arrive in Berlin last. All the Big Three would like to be present at the barbecue to keep an eye on developments—political, for instance.

However, the war will go forward hell-bent, irrespective of these undercurrents of human nature.

Presumably the Moscow and Teheran conferences of the Big Three discussed all the possibilities which could sprout from war's end, and planned accordingly. The Moscow pact pledged unity in war and in peace, and the United Nations will have to place their trust in that.

One of Russia's early interests surely will rest in the punishment of Nazis guilty of atrocities in Soviet territory, and there is a terrific black-list of names prepared. The Allies agreed on retribution and that it should be carried out in the territory where the crime was committed. Time will tell whether the Muscovites will seize all guilty Germans possible immediately and rush them off to Russia to pay the penalty. It's difficult to imagine London or Washington weeping over such procedure.

We also know through a lecture by Professor Eugene Varga in Moscow that the Soviet intends to demand that several million enemy workmen be compelled to go to Russia to repair some of the awful damage wrought by the Germans. The Soviet doesn't want money; it wants sweat and brawn to do rebuilding. It's interesting to note in this connection that the Russians will have a host of German prisoners at the end of the conflict, and it seems possible that Moscow will ask the other Allies to agree that these men remain in the Soviet for work.

FEW STUDENTS HERE REALIZE THEIR AMBITION

Armed Service, Possibility Not Included in Survey, Takes 211 from 5 Classes

Only a small percentage of high school students here realize their ambitions, two related surveys conducted by the vocational cooperative department under the direction of Miss Helen King disclose.

One survey, conducted among present students last week, showed the majority wanted to go into what was broadly described as "big business." There were, however, many other ambitions listed.

Actual records of the last five classes graduated from WHS which have just been compiled reveal that only 91 out of the 583 listed went into the private industry and office work in which they are now engaged. Government agencies absorbed 63 more and just two own their own business.

Armed service, a possibility not included in the survey, claimed 211 of the 583 graduates—only one a girl. Farming and agriculture captured the fancies of 18 boys.

Next to the services, marriage (for girls) drew the largest percentage of the total graduates—124. Married girls not working are 96—those working total 28.

Eleven graduates are now professional men and women. Colleges and universities claimed 41 boys and girls. Ten girls are now doing housework. Six of the graduates are deceased; the high school has lost track of four and two are classed as doing miscellaneous work.

Tabulated employment of the 583 graduates is:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—(P)—

For risking his life three times in as many days under intense enemy fire to save wounded comrades in New Georgia, Staff Sergeant Nicholas B. Dulle, infantryman, from Continental (Putnam County) O., has been awarded the distinguished service cross, the War Department announced today.

The first episode was on July 29. Seeing a wounded corporal from his own company lying exposed to the enemy's spray of bullets, he ran forward and carried the injured man to cover.

On the following day an officer fell only 75 yards from the enemy while leading an attack on a

We Stand Squarely for the Best Interest of the Citizens of Washington C. H. and Fayette County.

The Fault Finders

The other day a Washington C. H. business man remarked, "I can stand the difficulties of war time, even the government's confusing restrictions, rationing and a lot of other trouble incident to doing business right now, better than I can the grumblers. They come nearer to driving me crazy than anything else that goes on."

There is a lot of material for thought for a lot of us in that statement. The folks who, war or no war, labor shortage or no shortage, scarcity of commodities or no scarcity, want immediate and extra service and attention all the way down the line, are the people who are making war troubles just a little harder to bear.

Often you hear this type of complainer fussing when he or she has to wait five or ten minutes for luncheon service in a restaurant, or for attention in a drug store. You'll see them flouncing out of places which do not have the exact merchandise they want. You notice their glances at the awkwardness or timidity of young clerks unaccustomed to their new jobs. You hear their impatient feet tapping while they wait at store counters for hardpressed salespeople to fill the needs of twice as many customers as under normal conditions.

Of course, many grumblers are themselves hard pressed for proper help, for sufficient supplies or for adequate time in their own business or wartime activities. Most of them regard themselves as patriotic, and are grumblers only through thoughtlessness. A minute's reflection must make them realize that the business managements of all the places which have caused them some annoyance, would much prefer that service be swift and skillful in their establishments, that they have all the merchandise asked for, that there should be no delays, no disappointments of any kind. Certainly the managements wish it, for sound business reasons. But every store manager or owner today is handicapped by war conditions that are beyond his control. He is doing his utmost to mitigate their effect, for survival sake, and surely it is not too much for him to expect that the public understand and make allowances in these difficult war days. A little graciousness is all that business managements ask of the public. They are in no position to ask it publicly. But we can ask it for them. Let's have a let-up of grumbling. Let's be pleasant in the face of delayed service, awkward service, shortages. Let's be willing to accept substitutes, grateful that they are still available to us.

Service Men's Furlough

It is reported that American veterans of long service in World War II may soon be coming home on furlough under a troop ration plan to be inaugurated by the War Department.

That news is probably the best that many parents and wives have had since their men went out of the country two or more years ago.

Just how wonderful those furloughs

Today's Horoscope

You are fortunate to be born in this month. You have exceptional opportunities in love, business or a career, and can rise to the top. You are most considerate to those dear to you. You love with vigor and your home life should be ideal. One of the busiest and most eventful and, in the main fortunate years lies ahead of you, despite occasional annoyance with employers. This time will be excellent for correspondence, advertising, travel, and making new friends. Born on this date a child will be enthusiastic in all its undertakings; a lover of freedom and independence, exceptionally intelligent and gifted, and will enjoy more than average luck.

will prove to be to the tired veterans who receive them will depend in large part on the thoughtfulness and consideration of their families.

The wives or parents who are fortunate enough to have a serviceman sent home on furlough from abroad should never lose sight of the fact that it is the man's furlough, not his family's, and that during it, nothing matters except that he gets out of his furlough just what he wanted.

His family shouldn't say, even to his oldest friends: "You must drop by and see Bill." They should wait and find out whether Bill wants to see people.

And they shouldn't let their natural politeness keep them from holding at a distance all the people he doesn't want to spend time on.

No mother should say, when Bill says he doesn't want to get up and talk to the women's club, "Please, Bill. It would make me so happy. Why, I'd be so terribly proud of you."

Having to make a speech might very well ruin Bill's whole furlough.

Nor should there be a lot of talk of all that Bill's family has gone through worrying about him. He'll know without being told they have worried plenty.

And such talk as "I don't see how I can stand having you go away again" will just make his going that much harder for him.

Families are going to have to be unselfish, thoughtful and considerate—if the long-awaited furloughs servicemen receive are to be as wonderful as they dreamed they would be.

Civilian First-aid for Busy Doctors

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
ALL THE doctors we have left are busy. Civilian practice is crowded and rushed. Therefore Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

let's not put any extra burden on the doctor by calling him unnecessarily.

How are you going to tell whether you really need a doctor or not? The following hints may help.

Temperature—There is one sure-fire differentiating instrument for separating the sheep from the goats of symptoms and that is the thermometer. In a busy day it may not be advisable to have it around the house, or somebody will get the thermometer habit and create a neurosis. But nowadays it has become a necessity. Learn to use it and read it accurately. It is made in the shape of a triangle, so that looking down on it directly at the apex of the triangle the column of mercury is magnified so that it can be read. The column of mercury is actually very small, hardly as wide as a fine hair, so this magnification becomes necessary.

Take Temperature First

You may be feeling perfectly rotten. Or your husband may come home complaining of feeling perfectly rotten. Or better still, your wife may come home from the riveting works, and say she has an awful headache and thinks she is going to die. Give 'em the acid test. Take the temperature.

If it's normal (98.4 where the arrow) they are just pampering their nerves. If it's subnormal, ditto; it doesn't mean a thing. If it's a hundred and a half you don't need a doctor. Go to bed and take some hot lemonade. If it's a hundred and one, you ought to have a doctor but there's no rush if he's busy. If there should be another "flu" epidemic the time this article gets into press, remember all the doctor can do is decide whether you have pneumonia or not. He can't do any more than you can for the flu. If your temperature is below 101 you do not have pneumonia. If it is above maybe you don't.

Acute abdomen if it's real needs a doctor and constitutes an emergency. An acute abdomen is pain, vomiting, fever, and constipation. Don't say it's just a bellyache, or just indigestion. And if there is any one thing not to do until the doctor comes, it is to take a laxative or cathartic. Do not take a laxative. It never cures a case of indigestion, yet, and it kills people with a real acute abdomen. Thousands of lives have been saved because the medicine closet did not contain a laxative.

Earache in Children

Earache in children, with fever, is always an emergency. Don't put off calling the doctor. Apply heat or cold externally until he gets there.

Sudden eruptions on the skin, even in children, are not really emergencies. At least they can wait until the doctor gets there. It is probably measles in a child, or hives on father and both can wait a few hours.

Bleeding of any kind from any place—stomach, bowels, female organs, even the nose if it is excessive and continuous, is an emergency. You have just so much blood. You can't afford to lose much of it.

Poisoning from swallowing some household chemical or excessive amount of drug in the medicine closet is an emergency. Until the doctor gets there don't waste time looking up the proper antidote. General measures of emesis are more important. Empty the stomach and bowels. Make the victim sweat. Give him plenty of water, coffee, and lemonade.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

MALLORY BAKER did get out of bed now at Senora Estrada's words. Rather, she leaped out. "Give up my singing?" she repeated incredulously.

"Not as a talent, my dear, but as a career."

"That is out of the question."

"It is the most important issue. Your life with my son will not leave you time for a career. Too, Mallory," she said modestly, "we are an important family and that would not fit in."

"Not fit? I'm the most famous singer in my country, probably in the world," she said with childish hurt. Latham's words came back to her. Without warning she began to cry, deep, wretched sobs that shook her and made her words jumping sounds. After a few minutes, during which the older woman let her weep without interruption, Mallory said jerkily, "I don't see how I can bear it. Oh, I don't see how I can bear it. And the hot tears ran down her face again. 'How can I give him up?'"

Senora Estrada took the shuddering girl into her arms. She could feel her damp cheek against her own powdered one. "But you don't have to give him up. You're just shocked, dear. Manuella and I kept telling Carlos to give you some idea of your future. And he kept putting it off, afraid of losing you, I suppose."

The girl drew a long breath. "And so he has."

"No, no," crooned the woman. "You'll feel better in a few days. There is no blessing like a happy marriage, Mallory."

"I have been blessed." The shaking in Mallory's body was a bit less noticeable. "Blessed with one of the most glorious voices a woman ever had. That doesn't come to everyone. I can't even make with 'ractice' drudgery as instrumental artists are." Not unkindly, but determinedly, she pulled away from the arms of Carlos' mother. "You would have saved time if you had mentioned in the first place, Senora Estrada, that I would be expected to give up my work." She looked directly into the woman's exquisite brown eyes. "Carlos knows you are here, doesn't he?" His mother nodded, obviously wishing she did not have to admit that he knew. "Then tell him," Mallory said, "not to telephone me. I'll not be here. And please, would you go, too, Senora? I'm afraid I'm going to be very sick in my stomach."

She was miserably. But in about an hour she was giving orders with such vicious rapidity that Prism muttered, "I wish I hadn't been so lulled to you when you were sick." Immediately she retracted it, for her mistress, without retorting, began that awful weeping that she had listened to through closed doors when Velvet Name's mother was there. "Aw, Miss Mallory, the Negroes waited, 'cut that out. Bawl me out, Miss Mallory. Please bawl me out."

"Just keep on packing," the girl bawled through her sobs. "Get Mr. Alexander on the phone and tell him to fly back. Find out if Mr. Patrick has picked up my checks. And get the car greased and ready to leave."

"Okay-dekey, Miss Mallory, but I got only two hands. And please stop that bawlin', you're cuttin' my heart out."

That was the way she felt herself, Mallory realized. As if her heart had been cut right out of her. She felt as if death itself had snatched Carlos from her and, in a way, it was death. Death to love and a permanent one, for between them were unmountable objects.

Prism worked frenziedly. So did Mallory, between her fits of weeping. Yet it was after 5 o'clock when they pulled away from the Montecito. Prism had taken care of Carlos' telephone call with, "She done flew outa town," and a chain of, "I don't know, sir."

Now she sat beside her mistress, peering alternately at maps and signposts. "You ain't headed right, Miss Mallory. You're goin' toward Cuernavaca."

"And Taxco. That's right, Prism. That's where I want to go." She heard her maid sigh as if pleased. The sun set when they were a little past Tlalpam. Dusk came quickly, especially after La Cima, where they began a drop of some 2,000 feet. Something about the scene seemed familiar to the older woman, she realized, a combination of the dusk, the loneliness, the rugged growth akin to that she had seen while driving to Monterrey. But there was something more, "tuition."

She slowed her car. Of course that could be a clump of tall bushes up ahead of her. Nevertheless, she pulled to the side of the road and cut off her almost silent engine. To her maid she said apologetically, "Prism, I feel like a hysterical idiot, but that looks like a car down the road."

The Negroes peered ahead. "Miss Mallory, I think you done had so much worry and grief you're seein' things."

For some reason she turned and looked through the back window. "That looks like a car back that way, too."

"Yes," agreed Mallory, gazing in the same direction as Prism. "All right, I'll go on." She started her engine and moved with slow caution. "But I'm not dashing into anything this time."

Above the expensive purr of the crawling machine the women heard two shots, so close together that they sounded like triumphant double chords, like those used at the end of symphonies. Lights flashed on at the spot where Mallory had thought she saw an automobile. Not bothering to brake, Mallory whirled her dark car to the left to head back toward Mexico City.

"Oh-oh," she gasped in a frightened whisper, "looks as if you were right, Prism." Back of them in the spot that Prism had mentioned casually there also were automobile lights.

"This is one time I ain't carlin' 'bout bein' right, Miss Mallory. Just let's get outa here."

"My car is so long," cried the girl. With feverish haste she backed, yanking at the steering wheel to make the next forward turn accomplish her purpose. Meanwhile the car farther toward Taxco had been making the same maneuvers.

Doubtless a more adroit driver was back of its wheel, for it swerved easily and headed back toward the city while Mallory still struggled. As if in a frozen nightmare, she heard the screeching brakes as the other machine came upon her convertible, where it blocked the narrow highway.

"Get back!" she screamed at the other car. Her fear had her so paralyzed that her voice was not the jellified thing she had expected. "Let me get turned."

A man leaped from the car machine. "Good Lord, Mallory, do you have to see everything?" It was Richard Blythe in dinner clothes. In the limousine back of him she could distinguish other white shirt-fronts.

In the windshield of Blythe's car the girl saw the lights of the one that had been behind her. "What's going on around here, anyway?"

"Mallory, get your car turned again and go on where you had started. Just don't look into any ditches. I told you they did things in a hurry down here when they finally are convinced. The car back of you holds your soda pop salesman. Guarding you, princess." He clasped her hand lightly. "Dona Bertha's place is easy to find in Taxco and one of her specials is just what Dr. Blythe recommends for you."

"I might have known I'd find you here," the singer said to Tod Patrick. It was a little past 8 o'clock. She had registered, then strolled beneath the cruel press in the plaza over Bertha's cantina. She sat down beside him at the oilcloth covered table and watched the staid woman mix a drink, in response to Tod Patrick's lifted hand.

"What better place could I be?" he asked when the girl's drink, also a fresh one for him, were put before them. "I've had a marvelous time. You're right, Mallory. Mexico truly is the land for a vacation."

"But you're rested long enough. You should be attending to your work." She took a swallow of her drink, then a couple more. "And what about me? You don't even show interest. You didn't even come to my last concert." To hide her trembling chin she took more of the Bertha's Special.

"I was afraid you might call me Legree."

"It's not right for you to lazy around while I have to work. And go through all sorts of things." Her chin was trembling again; she gave it the tegula treatment. "Murder," she said.

He said nonchalantly, "Yes, Prism told me about that. Don't get excited because you were unfortunate enough to witness such a scene. Those things happen occasionally on American highways and you had to tear your hair."

"Oh, Tod, stop criticizing me. I've been criticized enough." Her eyes were crinkled with tears. She turned away.

"If she has," the man thought. "Someone has talked the bitter truth to her, just as Manuella talked it to me that day she came down here to find me. But I can't tell Mallory. Not yet, anyway. Perhaps never."

He eyed her scrubbed face. "Mallory, do you have a cold or hay fever?"

"Neither. And you know it, you unimagined me! I'm crying." Her words sounded as if they were balanced on the tool of a steel riveter. "You didn't even give me a Christmas present."

"It's not Christmas. Not until the sixth, but if you're going to put 'I'll give it to you now.' He took a box from his pocket and showed her the ring inside. "National pawnshop, so don't worry about strings attached." It was a clear but fiery ruby, surrounded by diamonds. "One for each year, Mallory."

"Twenty-six," she admitted, grinning through her tears.

She looked sideward at her manager, recalling Richard Blythe's advice that had seemed so crazy then. "Go into his arms and see what happens," he had suggested. She'd have to try that some time. Later, of course.

Understand Your Federal Income Tax

GAINS AND LOSSES

The tax laws provide a special set of rules for figuring the gain or loss resulting from the sale or exchange of securities and other property which is held for profit or investment. Although these rules are extremely technical, only a comparatively small percentage of taxpayers are affected by them.

Persons having this type of transactions must fill in a separate form called Schedule B, and file it along with the tax return Form 1040. Short Form 1040A may not be used by these taxpayers.

These transactions include gain or loss from the sale or exchange of property held for profit or investment, or used in the taxpayer's business, but not a part of the stock in trade. Such transactions may occur in real estate, or other tangible property, such as store fixtures or plant machinery and equipment, or such personal possessions as a car or household goods.

The law requires gains or losses to be reported according to the nature of the transaction, and two separate entries are provided in item 6 of Form 1040 for this purpose: (a) net gain (or loss) from sale or exchange of capital assets, (b) net gain (or loss) from sale or exchange of property other than capital assets.

A distinction is made between capital assets and "other than capital assets." The latter includes primarily property subject to the allowance for depreciation, and land used in the trade or business and held for more than six months where losses from sale or involuntary conversion of such property exceed the gains. If gains from the sale or involuntary conversion of property subject to the allowance for depreciation and land used in the trade or business, and held for more than six months, exceed the losses, the transactions are treated in the same manner as a sale of capital assets, and if the gains do not exceed the losses, they are treated in the same manner as a sale of ordinary assets (other than capital assets).

On property classified as "other than capital assets" the full amount of the gain (or loss) from sale or exchange is taken into the income account in item 6 (b) of the return Form 1040, and an explanation of the transaction is shown in Schedule B.

In transactions in capital assets, such as nondepreciable property and securities, the amount of gain or loss taken into the income account, in item 6 (a), is subject to certain limitations. For such property held for not more than six months, the entire amount to be shown, while for property held more than six months, only one-half of the net gain or loss is considered. The combined net gain is entered in item 6 (a) of the return. If, however, the result is a net loss, then the amount which may be entered is limited to the net loss, or to $1,000, or to the amount of the taxpayer's net income from other sources, whichever is the smallest. In arriving at the net figure, also, losses of this character for a preceding year may be used as an offset, within certain limitations, and the net results of such transactions, on partnership or common trust fund accounts must be included.

It should be noted that in the case of sale or exchange of property, such as the taxpayer's residence, automobile, house furnishings, or jewelry, gains must be taken into income but losses are not allowed to be so taken. Such property, not being depreciable, for income tax purposes, would classify as capital assets, and the treatment of gains would be stated above.

Sure's a lot of talk going around nowadays about post-war planning...folks passing resolutions...statesmen holding conferences...governments making promises to each other.

But as Bert Childers says: "What good is all this drawing up of plans unless each one of us decides to make his corner of the world a better place to live in?"

From where I sit, Bert's put the problem in a nutshell. Governments can pass all the resolutions and make all the treaties they can think of—and it's still up to the people themselves to see to it that the world is ruled by tolerance and understanding.

Unless we make up our minds to respect the other fellow's rights and liberties—whether it's the right to enjoy a glass of beer occasionally or the right to vote occasionally or our conscience—all our post-war planning won't be worth the paper that it's printed on.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Buried in the annual report of Secretary Ickes to Congress on the activities of the Interior Department is a little section to which Hawaiian delegate Joseph R. Farrington has called my attention and it is well worth passing on.

It is a dry but potentially dramatic account of how Hawaii has weathered its second year of war. Hawaii is our only great territorial bastion not in enemy hands but very much in the war zone. It is the chief base of operations for the northern and mid-Pacific. It is the headquarters of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and a great channel for supplies and men moving into the Pacific area.

In spite of the fact that it has not been attacked since Pearl Harbor, it is the heart of operations in that area and under constant threat should the Japs decide to correct their great strategic error of two years ago and try to knock it out of the war.

Only by occasional word of mouth have stories drifted back here the residents of Hawaii have rallied to the repair of damage done on Pearl Harbor day, to strengthening their defenses and to making the islands our great springboard for the offensive.

IT is impossible to tell the whole story now, but some of it can be recited and behind that recitation can be read the courage and energy of a civilian population that has for two years had war on their very door step.

The civilian population has been immunized against disease; finger-printed, furnished gas masks and trained for fire-fighting; first aid; gas defense and flock patrolling to an extent that would make the efforts of our coastal cities most vigorously active in civilian defense seem trivial.

According to Mr. Ickes, the whole territory is now honey-combed with bomb shelters and all vital civilian installations protected against damage. Emergency hospitals, first aid stations, evacuation camps, kitchens, food storage places, etc., dot the entire territory.

These are manned by civilian volunteers and nurses by the hundreds and World Day of Prayer would be held at the Baptist Church, February 25, from 3 to 4 o'clock and urged all to attend. Mrs. Harry Sprenger is to represent the society at the services.

Several members attended the Presbyterian meeting held in Columbus during January, but no special report was made of the meeting.

Leader for the afternoon was Miss Alva Rodgers, who had devotionals and was in charge of the program.

Miss Rodgers opened with having the singing of a hymn. She then read from the scriptures and offered prayer.

Miss Emma Jackson then read from the Year Book of Prayer those to be remembered and offered prayer.

The first paper, "The Land and Life of Africa," was a most instructive and interesting paper given by Mrs. John Steele. She said in part—this country of 140 million people contains vast wealth. The diamond, gold and copper mines are the largest in the world. More radium come from there than from any other country. Many other important commodities that are used in this country come from Africa. Various races of people inhabit the land. The medical missionaries are doing much good. Africa is the greatest exploited land in the world.

As the subjects for the meeting were Africa and the American Negro, the next number on the program was the singing of spirituals. Mrs. Joel Bailey followed with three lovely songs, "Every Time I Feel the Spirit," "I Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray," and "Have I Given Anything Today?" Mrs. Louise Terry accompanied her on the piano.

The last number on the program, "The Progress of a Race," was given by Mrs. W. O. Beatty. Mrs. Beatty read many interesting articles showing the progress the Negroes have made in this country since 20 were brought here in 1619. Negroes have been patriotic and have taken part in all of the wars of this nation and are taking a very active part in the second war. Mrs. Beatty mentioned many who have become famous in all branches of art and science and more are climbing the ladder of success each year.

The meeting was closed with all giving the Mispah benediction.

Very delicious refreshments were served in the dining room to the thirty members present.

Commercial Club Of WHS Has Valentine Party

The Commercial Club of Washington High School held their February meeting in the Home Economics' room of the high school and a highlight of the evening's entertainment was an address entitled "Charm," by Miss Marguerite Mauger, home economics instructor.

Program chairman was Virginia Hodge and she was assisted throughout the evening by Vera Waugh and Wilma Arnott. Miss Hodge introduced Miss Mauger, who, assisted by Mary Moorehead, gave a demonstration of the correct method of applying cosmetics. During the demonstration Miss Mauger commented that "every woman has possibilities for attractiveness, but too many are too indifferent and lazy to emphasize their good points and minimize the bad through correct make-up."

The members were then given tape measures and instructed as to how to go about measuring the contours of their faces. After this was done, graphs and charts were studied for the correct make-up of each individual case.

At the close of the interesting program a committee composed of Jeanette Tuvel, Helen Campbell and Helen Moore served delicious refreshments, suggestive of St. Valentine's Day. Divided hearts were used as placecards and table decorations and ice-cream, wafers and candy hearts were served.

After the serving and the jolly hour spent at the tables, the guests enjoyed a contest "Famous Sweethearts" and the table, headed by Donna Jett, copped the prize.

In the absence of the president and vice-president, the secretary, Darlene Wimer presided during the evening.

Mrs. Margaret Bailey and Miss Gladys Melson are club advisors.

Plans Made For Post-War Expansion Of Library

IMPROVEMENTS ARE OUTLINED FOR TRUSTEES

Increase in Public Use During Past Year Is Shown In Report

Broad plans for a post-war enlargement of the library building here and an expansion of its service facilities was unfolded to the board of trustees by Miss Elizabeth Johnson, the librarian, at the regular meeting.

The improvement program first began to take form six months ago when the trustees agreed on the general needs and authorized the librarian to proceed with putting the ideas developed during the discussions into tangible form. Blue prints drawn by the Williams Construction Co. incorporated the physical improvements suggested and were used by Miss Johnson to illustrate her written report when it was read to the trustees. The librarian's summary of the expansion program, with explanations, follows verbatim:

"Two wings are planned, set back about ten feet from the back of the present building, and extending to the property line on each side their back walls continuing in a straight line with the walls of the present building.

"Space For Books Needed
"Because of the seriously crowded shelves, the first and greatest need is adequate space for the books. The plan is to build a room accommodating three tiers of book stacks in the space between the present stack-room and the property line (to the right, when facing the building.) The present basement floor level is a little below the pavement while the basement floor of the new wing would be a little above. Its main floor a little above that would make three times the space at present filled with book stacks. Archways and balcony railings would give at least partial supervision of these book stacks and aisles from the desk.

"There is also planned a wing of the same size to extend to the East Street pavement from the present building. The ground floor room to have an entrance directly on the street would be used by small groups of young people, men and women's clubs for meetings. A doorway cut into the long room of the present basement would accommodate a powder room. Lockers could be blocked off in it so any organization wanting to keep dishes, pictures or other material could rent such space for storage, but there should remain space for janitor's supplies and other library storage space.

Room For Children
"The main floor of this, the new wing, would be planned to meet a very important need of this library; a properly planned room for children with low shelves all around the walls and table and chairs, which would be just the right sizes. Its floor level would be a step or two above that of the long reading room in the present building with glass doors connecting the two.

"The long reading room would continue to be used as at present for perusing magazines, newspapers and for quick references to books, such as atlases, dictionaries and encyclopedias.

"The present juvenile alcove would be rearranged for a quiet study. With a glass partition between it and the rotunda; shelves to the cork ceiling; from linoleum covered floors and supplied with rubber tipped chairs at small tables.

"The face of the present building would not be changed, and the wings being set back, the architectural effect should not be impaired by the additions. The roofs of the wings would be concealed by the coping which would be on a line with that of the present building."

Report On Service
At the conclusion of the report the board members profusely congratulated Miss Johnson and the staff for the splendid work accomplished during the past year, and especially to Miss Johnson they conveyed their thanks for her unceasing devotion to her job as head librarian.

In her report on the library's service, Miss Johnson told the trustees that "380 new borrowers were registered at the main library here last year" in emphasizing the need for a bigger building and service facilities. Of the new borrowers, she said, 92 were from outside the city limits and one from Greenfield.

Members of the board are Mrs. Earl Gidding, W. S. Paxson, Mrs. C. D. Young, Miss Edith Gardner, J. E. Sheppard and Ed. Fite. There were 286 books issued in one day over the library desk in March, Miss Johnson said, which was the greatest number of books issued in one day during the year. In December only 88 were issued, the lowest daily circulation. The total number of books borrowed in 1943 was 63,760.

Last year, 1,049 books were added to library of which 33 were gifts, 349 were transferred from the rental shelf and 667 were purchased outright for free circulation. The total number of books in the library January, of this year, was 18,696.

There were five deposit stations in towns in the county at the beginning of 1943, but at the end of the year there were only three. Thirteen schools had book loans during the year and most of these sent books out as deposit stations to pupils and their parents. Some schools and several teachers in the lower grades kept the books for school use only, however.

A total of 19,330 books were issued from the county deposit stations, including both towns and schools and a total of 45,430 books was issued from the main library desk here. A total of 14,858 juvenile books were loaned throughout both the town and country; 63,756 books for adults and 12 picture packets which were used by teachers. These picture packets included pictures for nature study, for history or geographical information.

Miss Johnson said that Jeffersonville had a greater circulation than any other two towns, averaging over ten a day, and the high school there had a much greater circulation than any other in the county. The grade school circulation in Jeffersonville and Bloomington was high, partly because there were so many more teachers be held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeMent. A valentine motif was carried out in games and refreshments. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Riegel and son, Gary, Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeMent and daughter Phyllis, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sexton, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Theobald and family, Mrs. Keith Rowland, Mrs. Darwin Curry and son Ralph, Mrs. Elmer Gahn and daughter Janice, Miss Ruth Correll and Rev. Hupp.

Valentine Tea

A lovely St. Valentine's tea was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Shaffer on Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. Joseph McKensie as assisting hostess. An interesting program was given, followed by contests. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. John Johnson and Mrs. James Miller.

Miss Kate Pierce graciously presided at the tea table. Lights from the red candles shone on the sweetheart doll of lace and heart which made the center piece.

Those enjoying the afternoon were: Mrs. Roy E. Roddy and daughter Marlene, Mrs. Orville Thomas, Mrs. James Miller, Mrs. Fred Ribi, Mrs. Forest Moore, Mrs. Loren Ervin, Mrs. Clea Sheppard, Mrs. Albert Stoughton, Mrs. Wyatt Roberts, Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. William Cochran, Mrs. Sam McChesney, Mrs. Marion Custer, Mrs. Corliss Carter, Miss Kate Pierce and Mrs. Joseph McKensie.

OHIO'S POPULATION TAKES 76,071 DROP

COLUMBUS, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Ohio's civilian population has dropped an estimated 76,071 in three years, the Census Bureau reports.

The Bureau estimated the state's non-military population at 6,828,352 as of last November 1, against 6,904,423 recorded in the 1940 decennial census.

A comparison with an estimate made May 1, 1942, based on registrations for War Ration Book No.

4 showed a decrease of 102,144, the Bureau said.

Greatest loser among counties was Noble, with a 28.9 percent drop under the 1940 figures, followed closely by Adams, Hocking, Morgan, Perry, Pike, Putnam, Van Wert and Vinton counties, all down 20 percent or more.

Greene County led in population gain, the percentage of its civilian inhabitants having risen 25.1.

FIFTY APPLY FOR MUSTERING - OUT PAY IN SIX DAYS

Two Applications Made by Men With Overseas Service Record

In six days, 50 applications for mustering out pay from the armed services have been received by R. B. Tharp, adjutant of the American Legion, he said today. He estimates 125 will be made here before all applications are taken.

So far, only two applications for the $300 mustering out pay given men who have served overseas have been made here, Tharp says, and only one of the applicants served less than 60 days to be eligible for the $100 payment. The other 47 applicants are made by men honorably discharged from more than 60 days service in the United States. These men will receive $200.

No women have made application yet, Tharp said. The payments will be made in monthly installments of $100 when the total sum is more than $100, he added.

"They've just about swamped the recorder's office having copies made of their discharge papers," Tharp stated. If a certified copy of the papers is sent with the application for pay, the actual discharge papers may be kept by the applicant. Tuesday 14 copies were made; on Monday 16 were recorded.

After the applications are here, they are sent to any one of five offices, depending on which branch of service the discharged man was in. All army applications go to Dayton; Navy and coastguard enlisted men's applications go to Cleveland; Marine, Navy and coast guard officers' applications go to three separate offices in Washington D. C., Tharp explained.

Feature No. 1 this Saturday at the State Theater. Every good turn leads to trouble! Henry A. Wolf in the "Wolf Patrol", the Aldrich family in "Henry Aldrich, Boy Scout." As Feature No. 2—Hollywood's newest film producer is upsetting a stack of fabulous and fabled traditions.

He hasn't an elaborate office, nor one adorned by a bevy of pretty secretaries. No cordon of—of yesmen—run interference for him or parrot his remarks. Never once has he been heard to announce that he has made the greatest picture of all time. Yet he admits that it boasts possibly the most illustrious cast of the season. Obviously the newcomer is an oddity among movie-men, real and mythical. No stranger to film followers and anything but an upstart, this curio among Hollywood producers is Charles Boyer, one of the top stellar attractions of the screen. Boyer is bowing as a co-producer-star in Universal's "Flesh and Fantasy." The unusual new picture comes Sunday to the State theater. Of it, Boyer modestly says: "I think we have made a very good picture." Pressed, he will add: "I think the public will like the story—or stories, if you wish—and that it will approve of the cast and its presentation."

RED TAPE TO BE CUT FOR SERVICE VOTING

CLEVELAND, Feb. 17—(AP)—Cuyahoga County Prosecutor Frank T. Cullinan today assured the joint veterans' commission no suit would be necessary to compel the election board to re-store the names of 40,000 service men and women stricken from the registration list because of failure to cast ballots in two consecutive elections.

In a written opinion sent to the election board Cullinan declared citizens in uniform "are entitled to vote as fully as if they were present at their respective places of residence."

He added, "We do not have a great deal of patience with the bickering and stalling prevalent in legislative bodies about how the men and women in the armed service of our country shall be allowed to vote."

"The easiest and most convenient method possible should be devised and machinery set in motion promptly to effectuate it. Delay should not be allowed to jeopardize the right of the armed forces."

Two suits were filed in Ohio last week to compel election boards to return names of service men and women to registration lists.

AUTO PARTS ARE MORE READILY OBTAINABLE NOW

Auto Parts Production Has Increased 59 Per Cent The Past Year

Motor vehicle users in this community who have found it difficult to obtain automobile parts since the war started will learn with relief that production of new automobile parts has increased 59 percent within the last year, and that materials for parts are now no longer difficult to secure.

The above information is carried in a statement issued Thursday by the National Automobile Association.

"In our efforts to maintain necessary transportation on the home front, some concern in recent months has been felt with regard to the supply of functional automobile parts," the statement declared. "The great increase in the production of parts, however, has eased the situation and it may be said to be improving, generally speaking. However, the need for military parts is increasing steadily and will exert a constantly increasing influence."

It is also to be remembered that trucks now are working harder and under greater loads than ever before while passenger cars are getting older with little replacement of new cars. All of this means greater requirements for new parts. However, the use of reconditioned used parts is proving a great help, and we feel that as time goes on this factor will be adding still more assistance.

"A general survey of the situation indicates that the supply of needed parts for automobiles seven years old or less will continue fairly good while parts for 1935 cars and older will become increasingly hard to find from now on."

"Special truck parts such as special axles and transmissions will continue to be available in fair volume."

"In our opinion, it will be well for all owners of passenger cars and trucks to bear in mind that while the parts situation is favorable at this time all possible use of used parts should be made."

"The battery situation also is favorable at present and when needed batteries are easily obtainable."

MARK LAUNDRY

With a Buckeye In Congress...

By CLARENCE J. BROWN
Member of Congress, 7th Ohio District

It now appears likely that any soldiers' vote legislation enacted into law will be of the compromise variety. The House, ten days ago, flatly rejected the Federal ballot plan in favor of the continued use of complete state ballots for soldiers' voting, with the Army and Navy charged with the responsibility of transporting the ballots overseas and giving the opportunity for our fighting men to vote. However, on the Senate side, where in December the same bill, as slightly amended by the House, had been passed, the Senators last week did a complete right-about-face and adopted a second soldiers' vote measure containing the Administration's Federal ballot plan, and then tacked it on as an amendment to the original bill approved by the House. All of this unprecedented maneuvering has created one of the most tangled parliamentary situations in recent Congressional history. A Joint Conference Committee between the two Houses is now endeavoring to straighten out the matter. In all probability, if any agreement is reached, it will be on the basis that state ballots must be used where and when available, with the Federal ballot being substituted only when a state refuses or fails to furnish ballots for soldier voting.

Your Representative in Congress last week introduced a House Resolution which has created considerable comment. It provides for the appointment of a bi-partisan committee of six to study and investigate all news, radio and motion picture material sent to the men and women of the armed forces by any of the governmental agencies pertaining to candidates for political offices, public officials other than officers of the armed forces, Congressional activities - such matters of legislation - and other public issues. In plain words the Committee's activities would be directed toward seeing to it that the Federal government, which controls practically all sources of information furnished to the armed forces, gives both sides of every story in a fair and impartial manner as it may affect political candidates or issues, public officials, or Congressional action and national legislation. The Senate is once more engaged in hectic debate over the food subsidy and price rollback program of the Administration in the hope to complete legislation before the present Commodity Credit Corporation authorization comes to an end. Present indications are that the Senate will follow previous action of the House by prohibiting further food subsidy payments, although the Senate vote may be close - following which the President will undoubtedly veto the measure. There seems little probability the anti-subsidy legislation can be passed over the President's veto. Many expect the final result to be some sort of a compromise which will continue the present subsidy program on a modified basis.

A touchy issue will be before the Congress in a few weeks. It is the question of what changes to make in OPA. The law must be extended or revised if price control continues. Congress is determined to force administrative improvements; to whittle down OPA practices which feel go far beyond Congressional authorization. Angered not at the basic doctrine of price control but the extremes to which it has been pushed, Congress is thinking about specific restrictions to be slapped on OPA practices. In the making will be a call for a review of OPA decisions by regular courts. This would establish the right of appeal from OPA decisions in the regular way. If present indications are borne out, it is likely that the Congress will take advantage of the renewal of OPA legislation to settle, once and for all, how far OPA is to go on its rules, regulations and practices.

Last week was "Bricker Week" in Washington. Ohio Governor and candidate for the Presidency, John W. Bricker, was the official guest and principal speaker last Thursday night at the annual Lincoln Day Banquet sponsored by the Republican members of the Congress. The attendance, which was well over fifteen hundred made the meeting one of the largest in recent years, and the Governor's speech was well received by his enthusiastic and appreciative listeners. Governor Bricker was the guest of the Ohio Republican Congressional delegation in the Speaker's Dining Room at the Capitol, Thursday noon, and Friday was the principal speaker at a luncheon given in his honor by the National Press Club. Mrs. Bricker was honor guest at a number of delightful social functions during her visit in the capitol city.

The government sends out as penalty mail and, therefore, postage free, one out of every sixteen letters mailed in the United States. This would be a sufficient number to send every one of the thirty million families of the United States an average of sixty government letters a year. Incidentally, the government uses more than one-twentieth of all the paper consumed in the United States. No wonder we have a paper shortage.

A special plane with a luxurious office, bedroom and bath, as well as elevator, is being built for the President by the Douglas Aircraft Corporation of California. Some of the Republican leaders are wondering if the President is planning inspection trips to the armed forces in 1944 in lieu of the "inspection" trips made to the war plants throughout the country in the preparedness days of 1940.

OLYMPIC STAR'S TRIAL FOR THEFT POSTPONED

VARIETY SHOW WILL FINANCE LIONS CANTEEN

Club To Give Entertainment
To Pay for Coffee, for Servicemen

Just when or where the show will be is yet to be decided, but, Lions agree, the show will go on.

Paying for the coffee consumed by servicemen when they stop here for a few minutes between buses comes to, roughly, $12 a week, a pretty penny especially when 41 servicemen crowd around the lunch counter at one time to drink nearly four dozen cups of coffee and eat nearly eight dozen cookies all at one whack, as happened one day last week.

The swelled glasses fund of the Lions Club, used to buy spectacles for needy school children, is the basis of the canteen fund. Since few glasses were bought this year, the club decided to find some other project to use the excess cash, and came up with the spanking good idea of a canteen.

However, a little reserve in the glasses fund must be kept. With canteen expenses eating steadily away at the treasury, the club started casting about for an idea to raise more money for the canteen.

A variety show seemed to fill the bill. A committee appointed by President Harold McCord is working now to get basic arrangements made. The idea as it stands now is to have outside talent—donated for the purpose of making money for the canteen—and some Lions Club members on the program. All money made at the performance will go for the canteen primarily and other war projects.

"We want to make this thing permanent—there seems to be such a need for a canteen here," Paul Van Voorhis, secretary of the club commented.

DOZEN RANGY 'COONS ARRIVE FROM FLORIDA TO BE RELEASED HERE

A dozen big and rangy raccoons arrived here late Wednesday, the first of 50 the new Coon Hunters Association plans to loose in Fayette County within the next three weeks.

The first shipment, caught in the Florida forests, included both male and female and was of assorted sizes and ages. Members of the association's "reception committee" estimated the smallest one would weigh about eight pounds and that the largest would tilt the scales at more than 20 pounds. In size, they said, the Florida 'coons were comparable to those of Fayette County but in appearance there is considerable difference. The newcomers were described as "lean and rangy" and being "more yellowish" in color—"about as light as the lightest ever caught around here. One old male "looks just like a bear, with a big head and dark face," one of the committee said.

They are view as "ideal" for hunting with dogs because their ranginess fits them for a long chase.

The first shipment is to be put in a cage and kept until the rest arrive from the L. E. Thompson Game Farm at Clewiston, Fla. Then they are all to be loosed in different parts of the county at the same time, one of the association officers said. If arrangements can be made, it is possible that all 50 of them will be placed on exhibition at some central location the day before they are released to mingle with the home-bred and make new homes for themselves.

The last thing before they are freed, they are to have tags furnished by the state conservation department fastened to their ears so a check may be made on their habits and range when they are caught.

When the rest of the 'coons will arrive is uncertain. Because of a wartime shortage of shipping cages—about six feet long, four feet wide and a foot high—the next dozen cannot be expressed until the cage is returned.

They cost the association an average of nearly $6 apiece, delivered here. The money was raised through dues and field trial profits.

-Spying- On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The news from Florida that Joe Tinker is winning his battle with a serious illness isn't entirely unexpected. . . Joe never was a fellow to lose fights, though he and Johnny Evers might not agree on the outcome of their famous scrap. When they formed the Cubs' great infield combination, Tinker and Evers didn't speak to each other for two years because every time they exchanged words they wound up in a fight. . . Frank Chance finally told them he'd lick the one who started an argument. . . In later years they used to laugh together over their ball field battles until they'd almost come to blows again arguing over who started the scrap.

Real Inside Ball

Since they were fighting to win ball games, the bickering kept Evers and Tinker on edge instead of ruining their teamwork. . . In fact, one of their greatest plays depended upon perfect timing and they worked it on Sam Crawford once with disastrous results to Detroit in the World Series of 1907 or 8. . . Crawford was on second and a run might have meant the ball game. . . Tinker kept dashing over to hold Sam close to the bag and once he got their first, yelling for the ball. . . but Catcher Johnny Kling didn't throw and Joe stood there, growling and kicking up dust while Crawford again took his lead. . . As Joe passed behind Sam to resume his position, he remarked: "You're a lucky guy. If Kling had thrown, we'd have caught you sure." . . Crawford turned to look over his right shoulder and make some reply and at that instant Kling threw to second and Evers raced over to make the catch and tag Sam before he realized what was going on behind his back.

Solid Rockne

Lieut. Comdr. Mal Elward, former Purdue grid coach, tells this yarn about his playing days at Notre Dame. . . Elward was Knute Rockne's sub in 1913. . . When Rockne was hurt, Coach Jess Harper leaned over and said: "Elward, you might have to go in there." . . Mal grabbed his headgear, put it on backward and started out on the field. . . "Come back here," Harper shouted, then as Mal returned to the bench he added: "Now wait and don't get excited. I can see Rockne out there and he still can stand on one foot."

$1,000 Raised for Injured Athlete

ARDMORE, Okla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Everybody paid admission to the Ardmore-Lawton High School Basketball game here last night, even the coaches, officials and the players themselves.

That was because the proceeds—$1,000—will go to Billy Clemons, 15-year-old Ardmore High School football player who suffered a broken neck last fall and has been paralyzed.

Lawton won the game, 37 to 35, but nobody cared much about that.

Ninety-six cents out of every dollar goes for War expenditures. The other four cents goes for Government expenses "as usual."

CITY LOOP TOP HELD BY EAGLES

The Eagle basketball team were perched alone atop the standing of the City Independent League as the regular schedule came to an end at the Armory Wednesday night with a three-game program.

The Eagles, API Blues and Mt. Sterling boys were deadlocked as the teams went into the final round, but when the evening's play had finally come to an end, the Eagles ruled the roost without much dispute from the others.

A double elimination play-off tourney to decide the champion is next on the program. It is scheduled to be played at the Armory next week.

The Eagles literally swamped the API boys under a 47 to 17 score Wednesday night before a fair-sized but howling crowd of fans. Wackman, a former WHS cager, set the pace for the winners with 17 points. Leading support in the high-geared attack were Wally Noon and Bentley, ex-star of Wayne High School, who got 10 points apiece.

That tough, never-say-die aggression from Sedalia put the skids under the Mt. Sterling outfit by nailing them out in a ding-dong battle, 25 to 23. Heath of the Sedalia team was the outstanding scorer with 16 points.

The Helfrich boys, sparked by Schein who racked up 16 points, moved down the CIO outfit, 36 to 18 in the program opener.

HIGH FOX, CLAIMED FOR $2,500, LOOKS LIKE BARGAIN HORSE AFTER THIRD HIALEAH WIN

By FRED HAYDEN

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—High Fox, three-year-old gelding which W. L. Lunt claimed for $2,500 from Calumet Farm earlier in the meeting, promises to become another bargain thoroughbred.

The chestnut son of Gallant Fox-Juliet W. romped to victory for the third straight time for his new owner at Hialeah Park yesterday. Lunt, reporting that apprentice jockey, Harry Pratt, did not extend the horse in any of his three victories, believes he has a find—a possible stakes star.

High Fox developed his winning streak under Trainer Claude Felner. In his last race for Calumet, on January 18, he finished third in ordinary company.

It was too late for his new owner to enter him in the Flamingo Stakes here February 26, but Lunt entered the gelding for the Arkansas Derby at Hot Springs. Jockey Pratt will accompany the horse there later this month.

Bert Baroni obtained Top Row for $3,500, and Charles Howard paid $8,000 for Sea Biscuit. And the gentle, swift Alsab was picked up by Al Sabath for $700.

Sub Commander Named Coach of Naval Academy

By JOHN F. CHANDLER

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The United States Naval Academy announced officially today the appointment of Commander Oscar Emil (Swede) Hagberg as head football coach, thus confirming reports which have been widely circulated.

Hagberg, a submarine skipper who recently returned from active duty in the Pacific, was a versatile Navy grid performer 15 years ago, and a former assistant middle football coach.

In a statement from the superintendent's office, the academy announced that the erstwhile full-back, end and tackle had been assigned to the Foreign Languages Department "with additional duty in the department of physical training as head football coach."

Hagberg, who succeeds Capt. John E. Wheelchel, was visiting his home town of Fallsburg, W. Va., when the announcement came today, but others on the coaching staff indicated he would disclose spring football training plans soon after his return about Feb. 25.

OLDFIELD MELLOWS WITH AGE

One Time Speed Demon Says Flying Is Game for Young Fellows Today

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17.—(AP)—

The name Barney Oldfield, once synonymous with speed and daring on American race tracks, today stands for safety, cautious driving and a place to eat in nearby San Fernando Valley.

The cigar-chewing Barney has gone prosaic. The one-time terror of the dirt tracks who in 1941 made a record against world competition on Indianapolis' 2.5 mile speedway for five, 15, 20, 25 miles has slowed down at age 65. Aside from his restaurant, he operates a spacious country club and envisions it as a going farm after the war.

He's still chewing on those stubby cigars.

Barney began driving racing automobiles in 1902. He drove Henry Ford's first racer, the "999." His best time was five miles in five minutes and 28 seconds. "Boy," chirps Barney, "I really thought I was flying."

As faster cars came along Barney kept pace with them until he retired in 1918, the idol of the auto racing world.

Barney still laughs in telling about the 1914 Indianapolis race. He had the slowest qualifying time with his Stutz Blackhawk and 32 machines were spread out over the track to belch black smoke in front of him.

"I think the idea of smoke screens in modern warfare came from those starts at Indianapolis when we used mineral oil," Oldfield mused. "Anyhow, I laid back and let 'em all get away because I couldn't drive through that screen. By the time I hit the stretch the leader, Christians, in a Belgian car, had almost caught and lapped me, so I put my foot down and let 'er out."

"We poured down the straightway with me slightly in the lead and the crowd sent up a mighty cheer. They thought I was ahead. I stayed in front of that car for 25 miles. It was hours after the finish before the officials discovered I really was a lap behind and that I wasn't sitting records on every lap. I don't know how all those people thought I could get from 33rd position in one lap."

He finished fifth in that race.

"If I had my life to live over again," he concluded, "I'd take up flying. That's the game for the young fellows of today."

BUT, OUTSIDE OF THAT HE'S FEELING JUST FINE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Clarence Templeton, lawyer known as "The Sage of Jellico," was in town recently.

A newspaper asked about his health and received this reply: "Purty po'ly. Purty po'ly. I've got fleabitis in my right lower leg and arthritis in my left knee. I've got neuritis in both shoulders, and on top of all that I've got chronic bronchitis. I'm purty po'ly."

He explained fleabitis as a touch of the milk leg, whatever that is.

JUNE COOK WINS SNOW WHITE'S CONTEST HERE

Winner Goes To Columbus Saturday for State Final Audition

Miss June Cook, sixteen year old high school girl, is the winner of the Princess Snow White auditions at the Fayette Theater Wednesday night.

"I'm awfully glad I won this contest. I've always liked to sing and everything and this seems like a chance for me," Miss Cook said. She admittedly is nervous over the prospect of singing in the state final contest Saturday but said "I'm going up there and try to win it."

Ambitious musically, Miss Cook doesn't know yet just what phase of singing she wants to consider seriously. Concert, radio, and movies all appeal to her, although she hasn't singled out any one of them yet.

Miss Cook, tall blonde daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Creed Cook, 819 South Fayette Street, will go to Columbus Saturday for the state final auditions at the Neil House at 1 P.M. Winner of this contest will go to Cincinnati February 22 for a coronation dinner and final audition to decide what girl will have an expense-paid trip to Hollywood next summer with her mother or guardian.

The sixteen contestants appeared on the Fayette Theater stage at 8:30 P.M. Wednesday night to sing "I'm Wishing," "Heigh Ho," "Whistle While You Work," or "Some Day My Prince Will Come," from "Snow White" and other songs to compete for the first place here.

Judges Mrs. J. Rankin Paul, W. L. O'Brien and Loren Wilson, say they "had a hard time" deciding which of the contestants—judged on personal appearance and voice—rated highest. Miss Cook chose "Some Day My Prince Will Come" as her contest number.

Two girls, Mary Kathryn Williams and Mary Elinor Scott, who entered the contest, were unable to appear Wednesday night because of illness.

Maynard Craig was master of ceremonies, introducing each girl as she appeared on the stage. Miss Mary Elizabeth Browning, music instructor at W.H.S., and Mrs. Ralph Gage were among the accompanists.

SONG SERVICES AT GRACE CHURCH

Congregational Singing To Be Featured

Starting Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock and continuing each Sunday at the same hour for six consecutive weeks, congregational singing of old time songs will be featured at Grace Methodist Church, with Choir Director Loren Wilson, in charge.

Last year a series of song fests conducted at the church proved highly popular and attracted good attendance each night.

Persons wishing favorite songs sung are asked to send in the titles to Director Wilson.

MERCURY CLIMBS TO 45 DEGREES WEDNESDAY

Peak temperature recorded Wednesday was 45 degrees and the low at 9 P.M. was 32, while at 8 A.M. Thursday, it was 33 degrees.

One below zero was recorded a year ago and the maximum was 22.

During Wednesday much additional snow melted away as result of the above-freezing temperatures.

KINDERGARTEN REGISTRATIONS ARE NOW OPEN

Busses Take Children To Cherry Hill School for Half-day Sessions

Registrations for the second semester of kindergarten are open now for two weeks, A. B. Murray, superintendent of city schools said today. Children may be registered by calling Miss Jane Durant at Cherry Hill School.

Children must be six years old by January 1, 1945, to be enrolled in the kindergarten, Murray said. The 85 children now going to Cherry Hill School for kindergarten are divided into two groups. Eastside and Sunnyside district children come in the afternoon. Children living in Rose Avenue, Cherry Hill and Central areas have morning sessions.

A bus schedule, giving times when children will be transported to the kindergarten, will be announced later.

RAIN AND SNOW WELCOMED HERE

Both Help Place Moisture in Dry Ground

Considerable rainfall, coming on top of the heavy snow which covered the ground the past several days, has added materially to the precipitation over this area, and was welcomed generally.

The snow had been a protection to the wheat during the cold weather, and as it melts and the rain adds to the water, streams are being raised and while much of the water is penetrating the soil, the frozen ground causes a quick run-off and prevents a great amount of water from penetrating the dry ground.

A big deficiency in rainfall has resulted here during the past few months.

QUOTA PASSED BY LIONS CLUB BOND SELLERS

$194,000 Worth of Bonds Sold by Members of Lions Club Here

The Lions Club has exceeded its $100,000 War Bond quota by almost 100 percent, it was revealed at the last meeting of the club. The Army and Navy teams—club members were divided into two sections to see which group could sell the most bonds through efforts of the individual team members—were close at the end of the contest, but the Navy came out ahead with $100,975 to its credit. The Army team sold $94,000 worth of War Bonds.

Nine new members—William Hook, Harold Slagle, James Shoemaker, Robert Trout, William Clark, Frank Sollars, Robert Johnson, Don Gibson and Marion (Dutch) Rife—were inducted at the Tuesday meeting at the Country Club. District Governor Norman McLean and President Harold McCord conducted the induction ceremony.

A quiz program on Lionism, including questions about the international organization, the club here and the code of ethics was conducted by John Sagar, program chairman. If any Lion was unable to answer a question, he was fined ten cents by the Tail Twister.

RED CROSS UNIT NEEDS WORKERS FOR DRESSINGS

Every Week Day Afternoon Set Aside for Doing Bit For Fighting Men

The Red Cross Surgical Dressing Unit in Memorial Hall is still operating every week-day from 1 to 4 P. M. and on Monday from 7 to 10 P. M.

But, more women are needed to make the dressings, Mrs. Martha Braun, instructor, said as she pointed to the neat stacks of dressings all packaged and ready to be shipped to Red Cross headquarters and to the cartons of gauze awaiting to be folded into four by eight and four by four inch dressings, 32-400 in all.

On an average, ten or a dozen women come to each session, Mrs. Braun said. Facilities are waiting for twice that number, and twice that number are needed to keep the bandages rolling along to Italy, to the embattled Pacific Islands and warships at sea where men are wounded and need the bandages.

Since last August, when the unit began operating again, 112-200 dressings have been made. That's a lot, but a lot of men are being shot now, Mrs. Braun reminded.

Pinball games have gone to war, their electrical racket relays converted to intricate temperature controls.

pouring 75 mm. shells at us. The man, meanwhile, had drowned and disappeared.

"We were seven or eight minutes under heavy fire before we got off again."

Once back in the air, the plane heard Major Coltharp radio again that he had spotted six more men on the water. The Catalina crew groaned. Her popped rivets caused her to ship much water every time she hit the heavy sea.

But back down she went, plowed through the water and picked up six—two from one raft, four from another.

Heavily laden, and with the Japs pouring more shots at her, the "Arkansas Traveler" rose for the last time and headed for home.

Lt. Col. B. W. Fridge of Baton Rouge, La., who participated in the Mitchell raid, said today, "we are going to try to get every one of those members of that Catalina crew every medal in the book."

Names of the crew, in addition to is Lieutenant Gordon, include Machinist's Mate John Brateley, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Lt. Elmer Kirkland of Bellaire, Ohio, was one of those rescued.

'HUMAN FLY' IS TO CLIMB COURT HOUSE IN WCH

Paul H. Hughey Legion Post Sponsoring 'Fly' To Get Cigarette Funds

Saturday shopping crowds will have a chance to see Johnnie J. Woods, the only human fly left in the business, climb the Main Street side of the Court House. . . the first "fly" to come here in 15 years.

Sponsored by the Paul H. Hughey Post 25 of the American Legion here, Woods will climb to the top of the Court House dome, and stand on his head at 3:30 P. M. and 7:30 P. M. At both performances Legionnaires will take collections for cigarettes to be sent to servicemen.

So far, 400,000 cigarettes have been sent from the Paul H. Hughey Post, and collections Saturday are expected to send several thousand more winging to servicemen in the United States and overseas. Woods, who has been working with the Legion on this project throughout the United States, says his primary interest in climbing the Court House and other high buildings is to send more cigarettes to servicemen.

Woods uses no safety devices in his climbs, which include the 30 story Pittsburgher Hotel in Pittsburgh, the 26 story Flatiron Building in New York City, the 16 story Waldorf Hotel in Toledo and the 42 story L. C. Smith building in Seattle, Wash., the tallest building on the West coast. He will wear white clothes and ordinary tennis shoes to make his climb.

Standing five feet eight inches and weighing 180 pounds, Woods has made climbs in every state in the union, throughout Canada and parts of Mexico. He says he has been a "fly" for 30 years. Asked how he got started in the business, he replied "That's a long story. Even when I was in school, I'd climb the school buildings."

DRAFT-DEFERRED WORKER ON FARMS TO BE CALLED UNLESS THEY PRODUCE

Selective service pointed out that of the 1,700,000 men in classes 2-C and 3-C, 400,000 are single men below 22 years old. It also pointed out that in war production and war-supporting activities—aside from agriculture—less than 125,000 non-fathers below 22 were deferred as of January 1, and under a recent order these deferments, generally speaking, are not being renewed. The "war unit" referred to by Selective Service is a standard set up for measurement of work performed during a year by farm workers subject to the draft. The care of one dairy cow, for example, is one unit. Thus, a farm worker would have to show he was caring for 16 milk cows to be eligible for deferment.

Other types of farm production having a value of one unit each include: 20 hogs, 20 feed-lot cattle, 600 commercial broilers and ducks, 75 laying hens, 40 turkeys and geese, 30 farm flock sheep kept for wool, 160 lambs in feed lot, 5 acres of corn, 20 acres of wheat, 2 acres of potatoes, 12 acres of soybeans, 12 acres of flaxseed, 5 acres of irrigated alfalfa hay, 10 acres of non-irrigated alfalfa hay, and one acre for most commercial vegetables.
